Fercam continues with Krone

Innovative solutions, quality, intermodality and reliability are the decisive criteria in the selection of semi-trailers for the Italian logistics company Fercam. As Johann Friedrich Harder, head of Fercam's Bolzano branch and responsible for the company's fleet, points out on the occasion of the latest delivery of 80 Krone Profi Liner with special equipment for railway transport, Krone meets the high demands the company places on its equipment. The demand on the trailers is clearly formulated: "With our vehicles we must guarantee our customers the safety of the goods and the reliability of the service". As Fercam carries out around 20 per cent of all transport with intermodal systems, the company pays particular attention to the intermodal qualities of the trailers when investing in semi-trailers; what counts here first and foremost is maximum body strength, flexible use and exemplary load securing. The new Krone semi-trailers, which were delivered by the Italian Krone partner RealTrailer srl., are used by Fercam on all European routes. Fercam has 93 branches throughout Europe, 63 of them in Italy, 24 in Europe through its own subsidiaries and a further six in Turkey, Tunisia, Morocco, Serbia and Albania. Due to its 93 branches throughout the continent and in North Africa, the company can offer virtually any route, most of them even intermodal (rail/road or road/sea transport), thus also scoring points from an environmental point of view.
